Faithful Servants Are Raised Up

Did you know that over 75 percent of the full time students at the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Philadelphia receive financial aid?

Many students have given up a regular income or professional pursuit to apply themselves to a seminary education. Some come to Philadelphia with their families. Many come with existing debt from undergraduate studies.

Financial aid is critical to the preparation of future leaders to serve our church. Thanks to you and your gifts to benevolence, people preparing for ordained and lay leadership in the church are helped to receive an education not only at the seminary in Philadelphia but also at other seminaries across the church. Over $46,000 in synodical aid goes directly to students from this synod who have responded to God's call to ordained and lay rostered leadership in the church.

One of the petitions in the Prayer of the Church asks that God would "raise up faithful servants of Christ to labor in the Gospel both at home and in distant lands."

Thanks to you, those faithful servants whom God has raised up are prepared to serve God's Church.
